AutoCAD Crack + License Keygen (2022)

In 2016, AutoCAD Crack Mac reached version 200 which includes full 2D drawing tools as well as new 3D tools like 3D drawing and the first release of Architectural drawing tools, a new graphical process for the design of buildings. The update also introduces new workflows, such as support for 3D visualization, and enterprise applications. AutoCAD Serial Key LT and AutoCAD Serial Key are part of a single product with a unified user interface. In 2018, AutoCAD Architecture was introduced, the first major change to AutoCAD since its inception in 1982. A prototype was released in December 2017. Raster graphics AutoCAD also has an image editor, drawing, and version of Adobe Photoshop for raster editing. Unlike other image editors, the raster editor allows layers, bitmaps, and all elements to be adjusted directly. Additional layers may be added through the "Use All Layers" command. Q: Converting list of lists into a dictionary I'm having trouble converting a list of lists into a dictionary. For example, I have the list: l = [['a', 'b', 'c'], ['a', 'b', 'd'], ['a', 'c', 'd']] And I'm trying to have the output be: dictionary = {'a': ['b', 'c', 'd'], 'b': ['c', 'd'], 'c': ['d']} I've tried: dictionary = {} for el in l: dictionary[el[0]] = el[1:] But it just returns: {'a': ['b', 'c', 'd']} What am I doing wrong? A: You could do this: d = {} for x in l: d.setdefault(x[0], []).extend(x[1:]) print(d)
