Q: Countdown to November from Jan How do I count down in php from 1st of January until 1st of November? The countdown should be done on the index.php of my website. So I have 1st of January in month.php as $month_n. And then I can have month_n.php?month=month_n + 1 until month_n + 11 until month_n + 1.. of November. The second, I have the date back in 1month_to_ amonth.php as $backInMonth. The amount should be backInMonth - month_n + 1 to 1 month. But is there a better way to do this? A: You can use date and time functions to get the current date of the month. $date = new DateTime(); $now = $date->format('Y-m-d'); $month_n = '1st of ' . $date->format('F'); (index.php?.$now.); $month_n = 'month' . ($date->format('m') + 1) . ('.$date->format('m') . '-month.php?.$now.);'. For example, if the current date is today, January 31, 2012, it will print out this: 1st of February (index.php?2012-01-31) month2 (2012-02-01-month.php?2012-01-31) ... 1st of November (index.php?2012-11-01) (New York) – Nigerian military personnel are using electronic devices to remotely control drone aircraft, according to a new report by Human Rights Watch.
